The Philipps University, founded in 1527, offers multiple award-winning teaching for around 22,000 students and tackles the important issues of our time with excellent research across a broad spectrum of science.

The Centre of Conflict Studies, Prof. Dr. Thorsten Bonacker in cooperation with VORTEX is currently accepting applications for a

Student Assitant

Research Assitant for a PHD on knowledge production around the concept of radicalization

Support Prof. Dr. Bonacker within the EU-funded Marie Skłodowska-Curie Doctoral Network VORTEX (Coping with varieties of radicalization into terrorism and extremism) which brings together eight partners among others Philipps-University Marburg.

VORTEX's overarching aim is to develop new evidence-based innovative strategies to counter and prevent ideological and behavioural radicalization. VORTEX will provide an integrated research programme not only but primarily for doctoral candidates to pursue their research in a fruitful and meaningful dialogue among relevant disciplines and in a dense web of supervision, training, and interaction to jump start both successful and relevant careers. VORTEX will explore and compare different varieties of radicalization in several empirical settings. Practice-based research with our 14 associated partners, connecting doctoral candidates to future job markets and audiences, will offer the opportunity to investigate radicalisations on several levels, ranging from local to global and from cognitive to behavioural.
