List 1 for scientific employees

Improve supervision!

Young academics have the right to receive support from best qualified supervisors. They need appropriate long-term contracts, which also stick to general provisions of labour law.

Yulia Chmutova

Reduce the workload!

The work load of scientists is too high. There must be a relieve of unnecessary tasks in order for academics to have more time for research and their personal qualification.

We perform collective bargaining.

Modernize employment structures!

It is no longer appropriate that professors are able to rule over academic staff at their personal desire. We need more departments with collective management and a wide range of permanent positions.

Andreas Piper

Employee,
Hochschulrechenzentrum

Solidarity, not elbows!

Scientific employees facing fixed-term contracts and heavy competition in the academic field need a strong and organized staff representation to support them.
